REVEALED: KARA TO BE BOROUGH'S NEW CHIEF EXEC

THIS is the man set to be handed the job of leading us through one of the most difficult economic periods in the last century.

Abdool Kara, 44, is the assistant chief executive for the London borough of Merton – and he is set to become Swale council's new chief executive, pocketing £130,000-a-year plus bonuses.

Yourswale can reveal an interview panel set up by the local authority has recommended Mr Kara's appointment unanimously.

And we've had the first exclusive chat with the man tasked with sculpting the borough's future.

The subject will be formally bought to the public's attention at a full council meeting tomorrow (Thursday) when the appointment is expected to be ratified.

The highly-respected Mr Kara said he has already spoken to his current boss about taking on the job one day a week from Easter before assuming full control of the position in early July.

The only things that remain are formalities such as a medical examination.

And his appointment promises to usher in a new dawn for the borough after the fiasco of the Mark Bilsborough era.

Mr Bilsborough was eventually sacked from the council top job last year after a disciplinary hearing. He had been controversially placed on full-paid 'gardening leave' for 16 months – much to the chagrin of taxpayers left bemused by the situation.

Mike Fisher took over the post on an interim basis in April 2008 but will now be replaced by Mr Kara.

Mr Kara said: "My approach to the role will initially be two-fold.

"The first one is to make sure the machine that is the council is working properly. I think the council would acknowledge that it has had some issues over performance in its time.

"But in later months things have been going the right way under Mike Fisher.

"Secondly, I want to ensure there is a much more outward looking approach.

"An important thing we have to do is minimise the effect of the recession and ensure that we are in a strong position as the economic climate

CAN HE FIX IT? WE HOPE SO...

Abdool Kara (pictured) will hand in his notice at London borough Merton on Friday – assuming Swale councillors ratify his appointment tomorrow night. He is renowned for demanding local authorities hit the highest of standards.

ROAD BLOCK: Careless parking is making some roads virtually impassable for fire engines

Double parking will cost lives, warn firefighters

■ BY NICK AMES

SOMEONE in Faversham will die if inconsiderate motorists do not improve their parking, say fire crews.

A number of roads across the town are regularly turned into no-go zones for fire engines and other emergency vehicles because of cars left double-parked, at junctions or too far from the kerb.

In a bid to combat this problem, a poster and leaflet campaign has been launched to warn drivers that it won't be long before carelessly parked vehicles result in a fatality.

The poster and leaflet show a newspaper cutting with the headline "child dies in house fire".

While fictitious, the poster serves to remind drivers of the extreme consequences which careless parking may cause.

These will be placed around problem areas and will even be placed on cars that are badly parked.

Police inspector David Applegate said: "The majority of residents do park safely and lawfully, however a minority of people do not seem to give any regard to other road users. I urge all residents to give consideration to how and where they park.

"If they cannot park near to their house without causing an obstruction, then I ask that they consider parking further away. Such an action may save a life, and it could be theirs, or a family member. Additionally, poor parking may constitute an offence and consideration may be given to the prosecution of people that park in this way."

Charlotte Hudson, Swale council community safety officer, said: "By backing this poster campaign we hope to draw everyone's attention to the necessity of considering the potential consequences of where they park."

"We have had a positive response to previous poster campaigns and along with Kent Police and KFRS, we wholeheartedly support this initiative."

Fire crews will continue to work alongside their Community Safety partners to monitor problem areas and target those who continue to ignore this message. This could involve fines for the perpetrators and removal of cars causing an obstruction.

It forms part of a recent nationwide call for action to be taken over the overcrowding of streets. It has prompted some to demand new homes include more driveways and are set further off the road.

Salary 'good money' for a local council

improves so that the regeneration of the area can continue

"That is incredibly important for the whole of Swale."

Mr Kara admitted his salary was "good money" for a borough council and he is looking forward to learning more about the area.

"I obviously want to get to know what the issues facing the people of Faversham are," he said.

"In a few months I am sure I will know far more about the town than I do now."

"What I do feel is the council must help those who are in the greatest amount of need of assistance and that is what I intend to do."

"But there will be difficult decisions to make and not all of them will be about the recession. Reduced public spending is going to take place whatever the colour of Government and I want to ensure that the council is in the best possible position to advise politicians to help them make the right decisions."

Mr Kara said he comes from quite a strong local authority background.

Enthusiasm

He said: "I have been in this role at Merton for three-and-a-half years and I also spent seven years with the Audit Commission."

"What I want to bring to the job is vigour and enthusiasm, together with a commitment to local public services."

"A full meeting of the council takes place on Thursday and following that I intend to hand in my notice at the end of the month if all goes to plan."

"Then I have to work three months notice but I have already spoken to the chief executive here about the possibility of doing one day a week in Swale after Easter."

"I then hope to take up the post full time at the start of July."

In a letter to councillors, leader Andrew Bowles wrote: "I am delighted that we have made this appointment which starts a new chapter for the council and the whole community of Swale."

"We had an excellent choice of candidates - by far the strongest field I have ever been involved in interviewing."

"I am sure that any one of the four interviewed candidates would have been more than capable of being appointed."

Dig discovers glimpse of town's ancient past

Remains reveal 11th century site

■ BY NICK AMES

AN ARCHAEOLOGICAL dig in the centre of Faversham has revealed what is believed to be a home dating from the 11th century.

The ancient building was uncovered in Abbey Street at the site of the old Whitbread Training Centre, next door to the Phoenix pub.

Pits, post holes and intact flagstone floor have been discovered by members of the Swale and Thames Survey Company which stages digs across the county.

Fragments of pottery from the Middle Ages and an even more ancient piece from the start of the first millennium have also been taken away for examination and preservation.

Significant

Archaeologist Dr Paul Wilkinson said: "As part of the normal process when a planning application is put in, an archaeological team surveyed the area and found that it was historically significant.

"We have been able to take some items recovered from what we believe are rubbish pits away for examination.

"Faversham is an historic town and we have uncovered a building which has been used

REVEALED: Fragments of pottery from the Middle Ages have been uncovered by archaeologists at site in Abbey Street through the centuries. The town is a rich area to explore."

The site is actually set for building development by property company Gillcrest Homes.

It was first decided to be important as various medieval buildings are in the vicinity including the 14th century St Mary of Charity Church.

The exact spot was also the site of a brewery dating from the 19th century.

During the investigation a pair of trenches were originally dug to try and ascertain the period of the old building.

Later finds included pottery fragments dating from the 12th and 13th centuries as well as holes where posts would have been placed to hold up the structure.

Further parts of the uncovered structure can be correlated to a map which dates from the 16th century of what was then the Abbey Farm Estate which shows a property in the exact location of the finds.

Other remnants of usage from Victorian times have also been uncovered including a cast iron ventilation grill.

The team discovered that the building had been extensively redeveloped in the last 150 years and the medieval structure replaced initially by terraced housing and then by the brewery buildings.

They say this indicates any earlier deposits – from prehistoric or Roman times – may have been removed.

Spring Loaded with stuff for kids to do

CHILDREN across the borough can learn magic, fencing and even street dance this Easter as part of Swale's Spring Loaded programme.

Children aged eight -14 will be able to take part in sport and creative activities during the Easter holidays at the Queen Elizabeth Grammar School.

Spring Loaded gives youngsters the opportunity to learn new sports and skills as well as keep active during the school holidays.

The activities on offer range from more traditional sports like football, rugby and cricket to the more unusual trampolining and tri golf. The programme also offers art sessions, sculpture and clay modelling and music making.

The activities will take place from 10am until 2.30pm from April 6-9 and April 14-17.

Each activity will cost £4. For details call 01795 417600.

Scholarship awarded to a good sport

A STUDENT has been presented with one of Canterbury Christ Church University's first sport scholarships.

Huw Stevens, 20, of The Street, Boughton, was awarded a scholarship for his sporting excellence in hockey and was one of nine students presented with an award.

The scheme aims to support talented sports men and women in achieving their academic and sporting goals.

Mr Stevens, who is studying for a primary education degree, said: "It felt good to be recognised for my hard work in my sporting career and rewarded for the effort I've put in.

"The scholarship will help financially and will give me the status to be an influence in my sport."

He is currently playing for Canterbury Hockey Club and the university and has represented Kent, the South East and Wales.

He has participated in competitions in Lisbon and Rakovnik. Most recently he had success playing for the Celtic Panthers and the Wales Under-21 team which came fifth in the 2008 European Trophy.

Residents' fury at 'arrogant' builder's plans to build flats

ANGRY residents say a new four-storey block of flats on the site of the Co-op store near Faversham railway station will "stick out like a sore thumb".

Developers want to build 14 flats above a newly-constructed store in Forbes Road which is currently where the convenience store is situated.

Eldon Hinchcliffe of the Faversham Society said the new building would wreck the current approach to the conservation area near the station.

He added that the developers had shown "supreme arrogance" in trying to site a modern building amidst the historic Georgian part of the town.

Architect Mr Hinchcliffe said: "The modern design and materials relate poorly to those of the 18th and 19th century buildings.

"The location of the building towards the front of the site would make it much more obtrusive and would result in substantial harm to the character and appearance of this part of the conservation area.

"There is almost no demand for flats in Faversham. We do not require another 14.

"If this proposal is approved I will take an extremely dim view of any Swale planning officer ever suggesting to me that one of my designs must respect its setting."

Ward councillor Anita Walker said the plan had insufficient space for parking and the amount of parking for shoppers would also be cut.

At a site meeting other protestors said this proposal was like "filling in a gap in a row of teeth".

The decision on the future of the site will be taken by Swale planners on April 2.

Here come the girls for summer gig

CHART stars Sugababes and James Morrison are to perform back-to-back outdoor shows in Canterbury this summer.

■ BY CHRIS BRITCHER

The two acts have been confirmed to perform in June at Kent's home ground of the St Lawrence Ground in Old Dover Road.

And the two shows should prove a much needed money-spinner for the cash-strapped cricket club which suffered more heavy losses recently as a result of the recession putting its ambitious ground redevelopment proposals on hold.

The multi-million selling all-girl group the Sugababes will appear on June 26 while Brit Award winner James Morrison will perform on June 27.

Tickets are available now for both shows and support acts will be revealed soon.

They will be the first shows since Elton John played to a packed house in 2006. He performed all his hits at the club in a show which made around £30,000 for club coffers.

Kent's director of operations, Jon Fordham, said: "We are delighted to beat off a whole host of competition to bring two fantastic musical acts to Canterbury."

"James Morrison's reputation as a must-see live performer ensures that he will bring a great following while the Sugababes are a show-stopping live act and they too will prove really popular."

"Elton John was our first music concert here at Kent County Cricket Club, back in 2006, and he performed to a capacity crowd. Now, three years later, we are confident that both concerts will fill our ground."

Malcolm Spencer, from Squareleg Entertainment Ltd, who has helped the club put together the concerts added: "Both the Sugababes and James Morrison are delighted to be playing here. The St Lawrence Ground is a fantastic setting for a music concert and I fully expect both nights to sell out. It's not often that you get two massive acts playing in the highly picturesque county of Kent, so I am confident that people of all ages will support and attend these events."

SWEET SOUNDS: The Sugababes will look to bowl over a sell-out crowd at the St Lawrence later this year

• Tickets can be booked via Kent's new-look official website www.kentccc.com or via the ticket hotline on 01227 456886. Tickets from the club are £26.50 which includes booking fee and postage.

Centre helps crime crackdown

CRIME has gone down in Thanington thanks to the new resource centre, say police who are celebrating its success with a new video.

Canterbury officers and Thanington residents star in a new film to mark the start of the force's Safer Spring campaign.

It highlights the work of police officers who worked with the council and other partners to help create the resource centre.

Since it opened police say the area has seen a big reduction in crime and vandalism in the area.

Paula Spencer, who runs the centre, said "The police are part of the team and the children love them because they are great. They join in and are fantastic, and we really appreciate having them here."

Police community support officer, Sam Milton, is one of the officers involved with the Thanington project.

He said: "It is an absolutely fabulous place. It helps the community and it makes my job easier because I know where the kids are and I can interact with them."

Webmaster in call to boost recycling site

■ BY GARETH ARNOLD

THE creator of innovative recycling website SnaffleUp is looking for a PR savvy partner to help increase the number of users.

SnaffleUp allows visitors to post up their unwanted items to see if anyone else can make use of them, but Herne Bay businessman Chris Toynbee, who started the site in August last year, says he may be forced to shut the site down unless he can increase the number of users.

SnaffleUp has built up a user base of more than 5,000 people, but Mr Toynbee says he has yet to reach the "critical mass" required to keep it viable. He hopes a PR boost will get more people logging on and allow SnaffleUp to become self supporting.

Mr Toynbee said: "There is definitely scope there to make money. It just needs to get that critical mass of users."

"Once the number of users goes up then there will be money to be made from advertising revenue and a few other sources, but it's just getting that number of users."

"It's just been difficult getting the word out there. You need a budget and marketing expertise and I just don't have that at the moment."

"I'm looking for someone to take on a sort of shareholder type role as a partner, with some background in PR and marketing who knows how to spread the word."

Mr Toynbee says the economic downturn might even benefit sites like his own.

He said: "In theory, during the economic downturn this kind of site should do well as more people will be looking for free items."

The things that get added to the site daily are many and varied with everything from lobster pots to lampshades being given away.

CRITICAL MASS: Chris Toynbee is looking for someone to help him boost membership of website SnaffleUp

And Mr Toynbee is happy with the thought that what could have once ended up in Britain's overstuffed landfill sites is being reused somewhere else.

Mr Toynbee has eight years' experience designing websites, mainly for corporate clients, but says he prefers working on SnaffleUp.

He said: "I do a lot of corporate work, but I like doing SnaffleUp more. I spend a few days a week on it, depending on how much other work I've got on, but I enjoy it much more than the stuff that pays the bills."

Body on beach was missing man

THE body of a Sheerness man who had been missing for a week was discovered washed up on the beach at Tankerton last Friday.

Steven Parratt, 36, of Meyrick Road, Sheerness, was found dead in front of The Marine Hotel, Marine Parade.

Mr Parratt had been reported missing on Friday March 13, sparking a public appeal by police.

An air and sea search also took place in a bid to find the man.

However, his body was found washed up on the shore close to Whitstable just a week later.

Part of the beach was sealed off while forensic investigators examined the remains but police said they were not treating the death as suspicious.

NEWS IN BRIEF

Concert to help homeless

THE GOOD Samaritan who organised a Christmas dinner for Canterbury's homeless last year is starting fundraising early with a live music event.

Last year, Matthew Meyritz, a chef from The New Inn in Havelock Street, provided a free dinner, present and evening of entertainment for 150 homeless people, and others, in the city.

Although he had help from other chefs and bar staff, with some companies and organisations providing such essentials as soft drinks and cutlery, he and his brother Tom generously paid for food for the entire occasion.

By starting early this year, Mr Meyritz hopes to entice others to chip in and is combining fun with fundraising by organising a live music event.

The music will be performed by students and local high street buskers, including a Christ Church University student who will play the piano and sing.

The event will take place on Wednesday, April 8 at St Peter's Hall, St Peter's Street, Canterbury between 11am and 3.30pm.

Man injured in fire at flats

A FIRE outside a Canterbury flat has lead to a man being treated for smoke inhalation.

Police and firefighters were called to the blaze in Hertford Court, off Warwick Road, last Tuesday.

The fire is believed to have started in a bag of rubbish in a walkway outside flats on the second floor. Police were alerted by Kent Fire and Rescue Service at 12.45am.

A man from one of the flats was taken to the Kent and Canterbury Hospital but was allowed home following treatment.

There was minor damage to three of the flats.

Drunk hit car with shovel

A DRUNKEN man attacked a sports car with a shovel but couldn't remember why he did it.

Simon Ferrett, 37, of Oakdale Road in Herne Bay, went into a garden in Oxenden Street and took the shovel and a plant pot.

He was seen attacking a Nissan 200 SX sports saloon by police.

Last week he admitted criminal damage at Canterbury Magistrates Court. Ferrett said he did not know why he smashed the windscreen and caused other dents.

Ferrett was given a 12-month community order, 200 hours community service and ordered to pay £1,500 in damages and £60 costs.

Council ready to switch off to help Earth Hour cause

RESIDENTS, businesses and community groups should turn their lights out for one hour on Saturday, according to council bosses.

The call is part of Swale's contribution to Earth Hour, a global initiative run by the World Wildlife Fund to tackle climate change, which starts at 8.30pm. Major cities worldwide have already stated their backing for the event.

Councillor Andrew Bowles has signed up to the scheme on behalf of the council by adding his name to the list of individuals and organisations who are supporting it.

This year all non-essential lights in Swale House and the Sheerness District Office, will be switched off to highlight the local authority's continued environmental work.

Impact

The council has already signed up to the Nottingham Declaration which commits the council to work with central government to deliver the UK Climate Change Programme, the Kyoto Protocol and the target for carbon dioxide reduction by 2010. Staff are also working on a Local Climate Impacts Profile that will inform how the effects of climate change can be minimised and will help the community adapt to the impact of climate change.

Cllr Bowles said: "If everybody in Swale turns out all non-essential lights in their homes and workplaces at the same time on March 28, it will help to highlight the issues of climate change and will emphasise the need to save energy and reduce Swale's carbon footprint."

QUESTION & ANSWER

MIKE HARRISON

Q Can you tell us about your position within the Kent Police Authority?

A My role is to oversee Kent Police and check it's doing a good job. I'm one of 17 members that regularly meet with the force to ask questions on behalf of the public to senior officers and staff.

I'm the lead member for roads policing and represent the public in east Kent. I joined the police authority in 2005 as an elected Kent County Council member.

Q What is the most challenging part of your work?

A The constant reading of documents, which is very time consuming! We have numerous committee meetings each year.

Q How is the group composed?

A Every member on the authority has certain committees such as performance, human resources, the behaviour of officers and finance. It's also very difficult keeping up with the Home Office – they are constantly changing what they want from forces and authorities.

Q What do you like most about it?

A I think for me it's seeing things for real – how the police actually work. The authority does have a level of influence and I think for me its knowing that we can make a difference on behalf of the police council taxpayers we represent.

Q What is the single most important thing you have achieved?

A Kent is working with Essex Police on a number of projects. I was really proud to be involved in a multi-agency road check operation that took place at the Dartford Crossing.

Technology is the name of the game these days and we used an automatic number plate recognition system that allows the police to crosscheck number plates with their own database.

Q How does it work?

A It flags up if the driver is wanted for having no car tax, benefits fraud or for a criminal activity.

We also have drug dogs and a drug trace detection machine on hand to support searches. It was absolutely brilliant to see all the partners working together with the police.

Q What are the biggest hurdles you have to overcome?

A It would have to be giving the authority my free time. I have my work as a councillor to do as well, so I have to try to fit everything in.

Q How do you enjoy living in Kent?

A I wouldn't live anywhere else.

Q What could best be done to improve policing?

A I think it's got to be the bureaucracy. Time and time again I see our police officers bogged down in paper work. They should be freed up to catch criminals. I crusade on this topic whenever I can to try to influence the authority and force to make changes. The use of technology such as blackberries and in-car computers is helping. But there's so much more to be done.

Q How do you relax?

A I've just gone back to the golf course and my handicap is 26 – which I'm quite pleased about. I like the fact golf is all down to you as an individual – the fact that you're not reliant on anyone else.

Q If members of the public want to contact the police authority how can they get in touch?

A People can telephone the authority on 01622 677 055 or they can email me at kpaenquiries@kent.police.pnn.co.uk.

Alternatively visit our website, which is www.kentpa.kent.police.uk, to find out more.

Recycling projects given helping hand

Countywide green schemes given share of £70,000

ELEVEN community projects have been awarded a total of £70,000 to go towards developing eco-friendly schemes.

The Kent Waste Partnership, which includes representatives from Kent County Council and the 12 district and borough councils in Kent, awarded the funding on Thursday from its Community Waste Action Fund. Each of the projects will use the money to fund initiatives designed to encourage recycling in their communities.

■ BY ANNA WHITE

The West Kent Extra and West Kent YMCA group was awarded the largest amount of £25,000, which will go towards purchasing two new vehicles to expand the group's existing recycling furniture scheme.

Landfill

The smallest amount of £100 was presented to Milstead parish council, near Sittingbourne, to purchase compost bins for local residents.

Minster Community Centre on

Sheppey, will get £8,000; Eythorne parish council, in Dover, £6,000; and Pepenbury, a residential home for adults with learning difficulties in Tunbridge Wells, will receive £7,000, all to go towards supporting higher recycling rates and cutting food waste.

Pepenbury fundraiser Nigel Hill said: "We live in the countryside and the last thing we want to see being built is a landfill, so we are going to recycle everything on site and hold events to get the community involved and hopefully encourage them to recycle everything they can as well."

Others Kent schemes to be awarded funding include the Greenhithe Community Market Garden, with £7,642; the First Faversham Scout Group, £2,000; Faversham Assistance Centre, £5,000; Resopon in Thamsehead, £3,700; Skillnet, £2,600; and the Beat Project. £1,376.

Initiatives

The 11 projects were presented with cheques for the funding at County Hall in Maidstone on Thursday morning, by Kent County Council's lead member for environment Charles Hibberd and Sevenoaks district council's cabinet member for the cleaner greener environment Avril Hunter.

Cllr Hunter, who attended on behalf of the district and borough councils throughout Kent, said: "These projects know their communities and know what their community needs and they are setting a fantastic example to others."

"I have been so impressed by the quality of the initiatives the projects have come up with."

Cllr Hibberd added: "Each of the projects is run by volunteers and they should be applauded as are helping to preserve the future of our county."

Industry left soured by our work-shy young

DAIRY farmers say the industry in Kent is dwindling because young people are not prepared to get their hands dirty.

The number of farms producing milk, butter and cheese in the UK has fallen dramatically over the past 20 years and there are concerns the trend will never be reversed due to a lack of interest in entering the profession.

Falling milk prices coupled with rising production costs have made it a difficult time to be a dairy farmer, although some in Kent say the industry still has a bright future as long as there are people willing to work in it.

Romney Marsh farmer Steve Furnival said:

■ BY STEVE KNIGHT

"There are guys who are retiring all the time, but the problem is the younger generation are not interested in the commitment of the job. They don't want to get up early and work hard all day."

Breeding

"I think there are about 35 or 40 farms left in Kent, but that's about half the number it was 20 years ago. The ones that are left tend to expand or become more efficient through better feeding or breeding techniques."

According to figures released this week by the Conservative Party, almost 15,000 farmers have quit the dairy industry since 1997 – the equivalent of 26 a week.

South East MEP Richard Ashworth, who lives in Folkestone, was a dairy farmer between 1970 and 2001.

He said: "The dairy industry does have a future in Kent and across the country because the demand for dairy products will always be high."

"There will be ups and downs so there needs to be top-class production standards, and if there are then I think the future will be bright."

Cathedral celebration will honour a joining of forces

THE Lord Lieutenant's Civic Service will take place at Rochester Cathedral tomorrow.

It is being held in the morning with a lunch reception to follow.

Allan Willett, the current holder of the post, has adopted a theme for the year called Mosaic of Communities in Kent.

This will celebrate cohesion among people and organisations across the county.

The service will be attended by civic dignitaries, councillors, magistrates and members of the emergency services.

A selection of people from the voluntary sector, as well as education and healthcare groups, have also been invited.

Top TV chef backs our campaign

■ BY CHRIS BRITCHER

CELEBRITY chef Richard Phillips has thrown his weight behind the KOS Media 2009 campaign.

The star of such cooking shows as Ready Steady Cook, Step Up To The Plate and Too Many Cooks has endorsed our campaign to encourage readers to insist on locally produced food and drink.

Mr Phillips, 37, who lives near Leeds Castle and runs restaurants in Tenterden, Aylesford and Tunbridge Wells, says buying locally – and from our website www.foodforkent.co.uk – delivers not only great taste and great value, but plays a crucial role in boosting the local economy.

He said: “There is no-one who flies the flag for Kent more than me. I always source as much as I can locally and use local people as much as I can. We’ve filming two new TV series and I’m trying to get my local suppliers involved in that too, which will create opportunities, and jobs too, I hope.

“If we can put money in local producers’ pockets, they will invest in their farms. And if their farms get bigger and better, they produce a better product. I wish all the producers success. Onwards and upwards.”

Mr Phillips is no stranger to Kent, having been born and bred in the Medway towns. At 16 he moved to Broadstairs, where he attended catering college.

Moving to London while still a teenager, he trained under the Roux brothers, becoming the youngest commis chef at Le Gavroche. He then became Marco Pierre White’s head chef for six years, in the process opening seven of his restaurants.

In 2001 he decided to branch out on his own and heralded his return to Kent with the opening of Thackeray’s in Tunbridge Wells – an eatery whose reputation for fine-dining has spread across the county. Since then The Hengist in Aylesford has been added to his roster and, most recently, his latest venture – and the first to take his name – Richard Simply browse our huge range of fresh products at your leisure and then select a delivery time. Before you know it, a box packed full of nutritious, fresh, aromatic, great tasting and great value produce will be at your door.

In fact, you’ll find overall, taken like-for-like, our prices are so competitive, you’ll often find you SAVE on buying the equivalent items in the supermarket.

He is also thoroughly committed to sourcing local produce for all his restaurants.

He said: “Local producers have raised their game. Years ago, supermarkets would swallow them up, but then spit them out, too. I think local producers decided enough was enough and have been more creative and looked for other places to sell their produce. As a result, the quality has rocketed.”

He says during the winter months his menu will be 25-40 per cent Kent produce, reaching anything up to 75 per cent during the peak summer months.

As part of KOS Media’s Buy Local Produce campaign, we have launched the website www.foodforkent.co.uk, teaming up with local producers of fruit, vegetables, meat, fish and drink to provide a one-stop shop for all your family’s shopping needs.

Mr Phillips said: “If you buy local, you’re buying in-season food – and if you buy in-season it’s going to be cheaper. It will be in abundance, it’s a better quality and it doesn’t take as much work to get it to the perfect stage. The key thing is flavour – it hasn’t taken a lot of time getting to your table.

“And I can buy it cheaper, which means I can roll that over to the customer. So better quality, better flavour and right behind that is better value for money.”

BREAK TIME

MP's student pride

YOUNG adults in Sittingbourne and Sheppey are signing up for university courses at double the national average, new statistics have shown.

The figures, announced in Parliament, show the number of students entering higher education has jumped by 50 per cent in the last decade, with 345 starting courses in 2007, compared with 230 in 1997.

Nationally, 25 per cent more young people started higher education in the same period. Local MP Derek Wyatt said: "I was very proud when I saw these figures. A decade ago, many teens would not have dreamt of going to university, but the Government and the teaching profession have worked hard to improve the quality of teaching and the self-esteem and aspirations of students."

"Now we are seeing the pay-off – a generation of motivated, confident and intelligent young people who will go out into the world and make us proud."

"With the Sheppey Academy opening in September, I am confident our students will keep achieving more."

Such a sweeping statement

■ BY NICK AMES

STUDENTS were swept off their feet during a visit by council road cleaners as part of Environment Day earlier this month.

The visit to Sittingbourne Community College was aimed at pupils from years seven to 11 and allowed them to see how our streets are kept clean.

A school official said the sweepers were entertaining, knowledgeable and related well to the students, who were attentive and genuinely interested.

Glenys Webb, a teaching assistant, said: "Our students are lucky to be given the opportunity to see life from all angles."

Chris Jewell, assistant headteacher said: "The students were curious to know more about how the sweeper operator manages to use the vehicle in busy roads. We had no idea the sweeper could cover a 6ft-wide path in a single run."

"The visit brought our environmental study morning alive and put the consequences of littering into perspective."

The visit proved popular with both staff and students, with one year eight pupil commenting: "It was amazing seeing the sweeper up so close and realising how much rubbish it can collect in just one day."

"It really made me think about when I have dropped something without thinking – it all adds up and makes a massive amount to have to deal with."

Swale has been recognised for its clean streets by independent assessors who surveyed the borough's towns and villages.

Environment Day was founded in 1972 by the UN and is commemorated every year.

The aim is to increase awareness of environmental issues and promote and encourage action to safeguard the planet's future.

Events organised to celebrate the day range from recycling campaigns to bicycle rallies. Schools can get involved in many ways, including essay and poster competitions and tree planting.

It is run in conjunction with the global eco-schools programme, which encourages pupils and teachers to come up with fun, eco-friendly projects to help make their school a more pleasant place to be and reduce its impact on the environment.

Don't go down my Wembley way in theatre souvenir sale

ON Saturday the final crowds will gather at the Marlowe Theatre for the venue's closing down sale.

For theatre fans it will be a chance to own a bit of history as the fixtures and fittings are flogged to raise a few bob before the bulldozers roll in and knock it down. All of this ahead of its state-of-the-art replacement being built.

You can even buy a little bit of the stage itself if you possess the money for such things.

It's not a new concept, just down the road at the St Lawrence cricket ground, Kent chiefs saw a chance to cash in when the old lime tree was blown down. By cutting it into splinters they made a small fortune. Clever.

Which reminded me of when the old Wembley Stadium was closed. As part of the sell-off they cut up slices of the pitch. It meant you could actually own some of the hallowed turf yourself. What's more, this was back in the early days of the internet. So you could buy without millions muscling in, in a Michael Jackson-ticket-frenzy sort of way.

I snapped up a decent-sized chunk for about £30 from an auction site that wasn't eBay – that's how long ago it was in internet history. It came with stud marks and everything. I was prepared to ignore the fact the pitch was frequently replaced, and the piece I owned was probably only stood on by someone from Deal Town taking a throw in as they won the hotly contested last ever FA Vase final.

So, I expect you're keen to learn how I planted it carefully. How I gave it pride of place, perhaps placing a small picket fence around it. Or, at the very least, marking clearly where it was positioned so that as my children grew up they could stand and admire a genuine piece of history and coo appreciatively.

That, of course, would have been a good idea. Instead I put the well-packaged slice of turf, in its pizza-style cardboard box, in the cupboard under the stairs. And there it sat for some weeks. Festering, forgotten by me. Dying.

Perhaps not surprisingly, when, a few weeks later I remembered, the grass had turned a nasty – and rather unhealthy – looking shade of yellow. This was, if truth be told, now a square of dead grass and earth. I rushed outside, with the laughter of my wife ringing in my ears, in a desperate bid to resuscitate it by digging it a patch in my garden. Nature is good, but it's not a miracle worker.

So rather than a penalty spot to be the envy of all, you simply have to take my word for the fact there is some, ahem, dirt from the old Wembley, somewhere in my garden. Even the shrub I planted it near has been moved, meaning I'm not even sure where the dirt lies now.

A sorry tale which will make buying a piece of the Marlowe stage look like a brilliant worthwhile investment.

Bringing back breakfast

BREAKFAST may be the most important meal of the day, but most of us still skip it and go for unhealthy choices.

That's why Warburtons, Britain's favourite family baker, is celebrating the nation's traditional breakfast favourite – boiled eggs and toasted soldiers.

Breakfast is vital for energy and concentration levels and this healthy option is an inexpensive, comforting and convenient way to kick start the day.

Warburtons' deliciously soft classic white Toastie loaf is the perfect accompaniment for the humble boiled egg.

It's ideal for toasting and even better for dunking! What's more, the large loaves are wrapped in wax paper to ensure all the freshness and taste is sealed in from the moment it's baked.

Boiled eggs and toasted soldiers are an incredibly healthy way to start the day. Bread is an important source of dietary fibre, low in sugar, fortified with calcium and it contains vitamins such as folic acid and iron.

Eggs are relatively low in saturated fat, making them a healthy choice for the whole family.

They're also a great source of choline, which is often linked with keeping your brain in tip top condition.

Khan's raw firepower

With Amjad Khan part of the England set up, let's hope the selectors don't ruin him as they have done so many players in the past.

I remember when over-coaching resulted in Graham Dillie losing much of his fire and venom when he returned to play for the county, so it is with alarm that I hear some people in the game's hierarchy saying his action is a bit jerky.

Does this mean they will try to smooth out his technique?

If so, it will no doubt render him far less effective as he tries to develop a model action which has no pace or swing when the ball is released.

The best thing coaches can do is refine what talent they have spotted in a player to make him be selected in the first place.

Wholesale changes will ensure the player loses the ability he has got.

Tasers reduce danger

I had to write after reading the letter from Chris Barnes in last week's Yourswale.

The ongoing debate about tasers and their usage by Kent Police is an interesting one and most people seem firmly against them.

But what if an officer is facing the real prospect of injury? Surely a stun gun is a better bet than a truncheon and a set of handcuffs.

Our police are still almost unique in the world as not carrying guns as a matter of routine.

Sadly, the world is getting to be a more violent place. So if they are to be protected, these non-lethal weapons are as good an idea as any.

A waste of resources

For more than a decade councils and other non-job government agencies have let us down badly, without paying collective or personal penalties.

Anachronistic committee-based institutions such as the Police Authority, local councils and the civil service are virtually unregulated and unaccountable to taxpayers.

There are innumerable safe havens for overpaid bureaucrats who are part of the problem, not the solution. Their allies-in-inefficiency are incompetent or complacent regulators, of little worth.

The Healthcare Commission is a disgrace, in my opinion, as is its paymaster the Department of Health.

They are insatiable cash-gobblers, all of them. Can't we cull inept institutions, clip their wings, and freeze not only business rates but end punishing surcharges, beginning with council tax?

It is ironic that less gainfully-employed have large numbers of children when they are not even supporting themselves. It has never been a fair world, but the indignity heaped on taxpayers is getting unbearable.

BHF in the running

I am writing to encourage your readers to join me, Phoebe Thomas, in getting fit and active this spring, by signing up to take part in an event for the British Heart Foundation.

On April 26 I'll be joining the BHF Heart Runners team at the Flora London Marathon. I'm determined to finish the course and help support the nation's heart charity, so I'm working hard to fit my training around filming for Holby City.

I'll be running for a cause close to my heart, because heart disease runs in my family. My grandfather died of a heart attack and my father suffers from high cholesterol, which is a big risk factor.

Taking part in an event is a great way to get fit and have fun.

By choosing to support the BHF you'll also be doing your bit to raise funds to help beat heart disease.

So, if you've already secured your own place in the London Marathon, why not join me on the BHF Heart Runners team?

Or, if you don't feel quite ready for a marathon, the BHF has a host of running, cycling and walking events for all abilities in 2009.

You can even sign up to take part in another event, such as the Great North Run, for the BHF. To find out more, visit bhf.org.uk/events or call 0844 477 1181.

Building up the laughter

Ricky Tomlinson to share the stage with Jim Royle

LAUGHTER SHOW

Thursday, April 2, and
Friday, June 12
Orchard Theatre, Dartford, and Woodville Halls, Gravesend

POPULAR comedian and actor Ricky Tomlinson brings his new Laughter Show to Kent this season.

A sure-fire antidote to the credit crunch, the man behind larger-than-life characters Jim Royle and Mike Bassett will be presenting an evening of big laughs. Joining him for the show, which runs for more than two hours, will be three other acts ready to cheer audiences in these recession-hit times.

Former Coronation Street and Emmerdale actor Tony Barton will be appearing, along with The Comedians star Eddie Archer and comedy rock band Black Onyx, which has performed in Rock With Laughter.

Tomlinson, 69, is one of Liverpool's best-known residents and has been a familiar figure on our television screens for nearly 30 years. But his early life was a world away from the glamour of the entertainment business, with a childhood marked by poverty. He was the son of a baker and his mother held down three jobs to help keep the family afloat.

Early on he hoped to become a professional footballer, but turned down a trial at Scunthorpe United to focus on playing the banjo in Liverpool's pubs and clubs. After getting married and moving to Wrexham, he found work in the construction industry and this would lead to his involvement with trade union politics.

In 1972 he became involved with the builders' strike, organising flying pickets and refusing to testify against his fellow strikers in court. Along with Des Warren, he was convicted of conspiracy charges and sentenced to two years in prison, but Tomlinson has always protested his innocence. He is still campaigning to clear his name and that of his fellow defendants.

During his time in prison Tomlinson developed a love of classical music and discovered socialist theory. Blacklisted by the building trade, on his release he became an entertainer and theatrical agent. His life changed forever in 1980 when one of his stage routines was spotted by director Alan Bleasdale, who offered Tomlinson a role in his acclaimed TV series Boys From The Blackstuff.

VARIETY SHOW: As well as three support acts, Ricky Tomlinson will also be performing as popular characters Jim Royle and Mike Bassett during his Laughter Show

He went on to appear in the Jim Allen play United Kingdom and Ken Loach's film Riff Raff, though his best-known character during the 80s was trade unionist Bobby Grant in Channel 4 soap Brookside.

In 1998 he was reunited with his Brookside screen wife, Sue Johnston, to play the patriarch of The Royle Family. Written by Caroline Aherne and Craig Cash, the BBC sitcom established Jim Royle as one of the most iconic characters in British comedy history.

He will be hosting part of the show as Jim and will also be appearing as fictitious football manager, Mike Bassett, the eponymous star of the 2001 comedy film.

To book tickets for the Orchard Theatre show, call 01322 220000 or visit www.orchardtheatre.co.uk. Tickets for the Woodville Halls date are available on 01474 337774 or from www.woodvillehalls.com. The show is not suitable for under-18s.

TOM PALMER

Wednesday, April 1
The Chimney Boy, Faversham

A MODERN day troubadour brings his entertaining songs to Faversham Folk Club next week.

Tom Palmer is a Yorkshireman who has travelled the world and brought home his experiences in the form of songs. His latest album, Kickin' Back, was written on the jungle-fringed beaches of Penang and the South China Sea, later recorded in Kent. He spent time roaming through Asia after undertaking a nine-month tour of Australia and the tracks tell stories of love, lust, wild nights and crazy experiences.

As a teenager living in Pontefract, Palmer was inspired to become a musician by Bob Dylan and Eric Burdon. He would coach his friends in the guitar by speaking the lyrics, which led to him becoming the band's singer.

While working as a chef, he supplemented his income singing in the hotel bar, impressing the guests with his deep vocals and masterly guitar. More professional work followed until, with his touring band, he played to thousands at Glastonbury and the Cambridge Folk Festival. The concert starts at 8.30pm and tickets cost £5 for members and £6 for non-members. For more details call 01795 423674.

JACQUI DANKWORTH

Saturday, March 28
Gulbenkian Theatre, Canterbury

JAZZ fans should not miss the chance to see music royalty when Jacqui Dankworth performs.

The undisputed 'Princess of Jazz' has an impressive pedigree, as the daughter of Dame Cleo Laine and Sir John Dankworth. She had always been drawn to the idea of becoming an entertainer, but did not become a singer straightaway.

A successful period as an actress with the Royal Shakespeare Company and the National Theatre, was followed by leading roles in West End musicals. She then decided to focus on a recording career. First touring Hawaii, Hong Kong and Indonesia with her brother Alec's quintet, before working on a song cycle with award-winning jazz composer and saxophonist Tim Garland, along with singers Norma Winstone and Christine Tobin.

Since then she has gone on to become one of the finest singers of her generation and is taking her latest show, which features jazz, soul, folk and blues influences, on tour.

The concert starts at 7.45pm and tickets cost £18/£16. To book call 01227 769075 or visit www.gulbenkiantheatre.co.uk.

His first solo project, Christophe Godin's Metal Cartoon, has been touring since 2004 and he is also a guitar teacher and writer.

Lounge line-up made of strong Scruff this year

IN THE MIX: DJ Mr Scruff will perform a six-hour slot at the Canterbury three-dayer

■ BY SIMON ROBINSON

TEA-MAKING cartoonist DJ Mr Scruff is among the star names confirmed for this year's Lounge on the Farm festival.

The criminally cult DJ, whose animated offerings are screened alongside his DJ sets, has signed up to play a six-hour slot at the Canterbury three-dayer's closing night.

Mr Scruff joins the likes of Dan Le Sac vs Scroobius Pip, DJ Format and The James Taylor Quartet on the first version of the LOTF bill, which will be slowly added to in the coming weeks and months.

LOTF organiser Matt Gough said this summer's offering was already looking good.

He said: "We are excited to announce the first batch of acts that will be partying on the farm with us this summer. "Already this year the line-up is shaping up to be the best we've ever had at Merton Farm.

"We're talking to some huge acts for the cowshed this summer, but couldn't wait any longer to tell everyone about the quality of music we already have lined up for the tents this year. Roll on July.

"Highlights in our eyes are the six-hour Mr Scruff set for Sunday, the return of DJ Format, our absolutely incredible news on the return of 'Canterbury Sound' with Gong & Steve Hillage, The Invisible, Wild Beasts, Wave Pictures for the sheep-dip... Oh to hell with it, we're excited about each and every one of these acts we've confirmed, and hope that you are too."

Lounge on the Farm, now in its fourth year, will once again take place in the glorious surrounds of Merton Farm, running from Friday July 10 to Sunday July 12.

Last year's sell-out festival saw hundreds of top bands and artists perform across six stages, ranging from the Cow Shed to the Sheep Dip.

The line-up boasted the likes of Art Brut, The Coral, New York Dolls, Black Kids and Mystery Jets.

A taste of the Orient

Yoons

ONE of the foremost Asian eateries in Medway, Yoons has a satisfied customer base ranging far across the county.

A successful Chinese, Malaysian and Thai restaurant, it has dishes tailor made to suit the tastes of fans of a variety of foods from the Orient.

Live entertainment takes place most Thursdays so set meals are off the menu. But at all other times they can be enjoyed along with the extensive range of a la carte dishes.

The venue is one of the best in the area when it comes to style, presentation, ambience and food quality.

Added to that are excellent prices which make for a winning combination across the board.

An eat as much as you like menu for lunchtimes is very popular with a price of £14.50 per head allowing diners to sample a wide range of exotic food.

Peter Jenkins who runs the premises will play the bagpipes to serenade diners on special occasions, such as birthdays.

The restaurant has a great following among members of the local Chinese community – not least because the chef is Chinese himself and has an amazing range of creations from his home country.

Local community groups are frequent visitors and best selling dishes include crispy aromatic duck, Mongolian lamb, beef ren dang – Malay style – curry and Assam king prawn.

Peter said: "I feel it says something that we have so many Chinese people who want to eat at our restaurant. I can see what customers want whether it be from Chinese, Thai or Malaysian food."

Yoons is open from noon to 12.45pm and 6pm till late from Mondays to Saturdays and from 1pm to 10pm on Sundays.

YOUR TV REVIEW

NO LAUGHING MATTER: Horne and Corden fail to hit the spot with their new BBC sketch show

IT'S testing times for television.

With money on everybody's mind those who make our shows on both sides of the Atlantic will likely have to get real and make cut backs like everyone else.

Channel Four might have to stop re-fitting the Big Brother house each year and set it in a barn; the BBC may axe Eastenders (we can all dream); and ITV will probably cut back on its original drama output.

Well, at least it's not all bad news.

It's at times like this that broadcasters will likely turn to their established talents to help them navigate the crisis – the 'bankers' as it were.

So, the Beeb's current young guns, Matthew Horne and James Corden, have been dispatched into battle.

Carrying the flag of fresh new comedy with hopes in the boardrooms of Broadcasting House high, one would assume.

And the result? Well, what can I say except for, oh dear? Oh dear, oh dear, oh dear.

As sketch shows go this one seems to have drawn up a suicide pact with Carol Thatcher's presenting career.

It's woeful stuff, truly it is.

James Corden's schtick seems to revolve around "I'm fat therefore I'm funny" and if the laughs don't come at all (which happens often) it's out with the huge belly, which seems to be BBC Three's current answer to a nob/fart gag. How very ingenious...

The two stars have been heavily promoting this tosh for weeks cropping up on everything from T4 to Jonathan Ross, name-dropping to their heart's content. And they're also promoting a new film – see, I told you they were everywhere.

We haven't seen this kind of manic oversell since John Barrowman released an album of smoochy covers.

It really does look like the BBC's new darlings may not be all they're cracked up to be after all and this Kathy Burke-directed attempt at comedy is not so much the sound of the penny dropping for this pair more the sound of the entire contents of a bank vault nose-diving onto the street from a 1,000-feet above.

Perhaps it is the admittance of a rather feeble TV critic who will say that I've never actually watched Gavin and Stacey, their other apparently hilarious outing, but on this evidence, I doubt I'll ever get round to it.

YOUR WEEK'S HOROSCOPE

BY RUSSELL GRANT

AQUARIUS (Jan 21-Feb 19)

A SENSE of foreboding stops you taking risks. It's wise to be cautious. An enemy could be trying to ruin your reputation. The more honourable your behaviour, the harder is to take you down. It may be a good idea to change passwords, or sensitive information could be compromised.

• To find out more about what the stars have in store call Russell on Aquarius 09067-531762

TAURUS (Apr 21-May 21)

A LACK of experience could be standing between you and a plum position. Instead of getting angry, work to change the situation. It may take a long time to reach your goals, but the sacrifice will be worth it. It's possible that a bad habit has preventing you from achieving success.

• To find out more about what the stars have in store call Russell on Taurus 09067-531753

LEO (Jul 24-Aug 23)

HEALTH problems could be slowing your progress. You need to treat your body like a temple. By giving your system a chance to recuperate, you'll reconnect with your spirit. All of the sudden your zest for life will be back. Wouldn't it be nice to wake up and feel enthusiastic again?

SCORPIO (Oct 24-Nov 22)

A NEGATIVE outlook could be poisoning your life. Yes, you've experienced some bad setbacks, but if you focus on these troubles they'll only escalate. Reflect on your blessings. Stay away from people who enjoy seeing you suffer. If your work environment is toxic, find a new job.

• To find out more about what the stars have in store call Russell on Scorpio 09067-531759

PISCES (Feb 20-Mar 20)

GOING along with the crowd could get you into trouble. Be prepared to break away from the pack if it is engaged in questionable behaviour. Yes, you may lose some friends, but it's better than losing your self-respect. Ganging up against a weaker individual is never justified.

• To find out more about what the stars have in store call Russell on Pisces 09067-531763

GEMINI (May 22-Jun 22)

IT'S time to accept that a painful situation has come to an end. You have a choice; you can either move on or stay mired in the past. Trying to revive a failed relationship will only lead to more heartache and regret. Stop hanging around people who make you feel inferior.

• To find out more about what the stars have in store call Russell on Gemini 09067-531754

VIRGO (Aug 24-Sep 23)

A MANIPULATIVE youngster or lover could be clouding your thinking. You need to establish some ground rules with them or they'll continue to take advantage of you. If someone is pushing their luck on the romantic front, alarm bells should be ringing now. Don't let them set the pace.

• To find out more about what the stars have in store call Russell on Virgo 09067-531757

SAGITTARIUS (Nov 23-Dec 21)

FINANCIAL difficulties could put a damper on your love life. If a relationship is going to work, the two of you need to pull together. Sniping at each other will put you both in a very bad place. Sit down and work out a plan that helps you both out of this rut.

• To find out more about what the stars have in store call Russell on Sagittarius 09067-531760

ARIES (Mar 21-Apr 20)

FLATTERY will get you everywhere, especially where authority figures are concerned. A few compliments will steer you away from trouble. There's even a chance they will ask for a date. If you've been thinking of updating your look, this would be a great week to do so.

• To find out more about what the stars have in store call Russell on Aries 09067-531752

CANCER (Jun 23-Jul 23)

DON'T let another person have undue control over your life. It's time to forge a more independent future. If that means opening your own bank account, moving into a new place, or breaking ties with an abusive lover, so be it. An exciting opportunity will help you to make the changes you need.

• To find out more about what the stars have in store call Russell on Cancer 09067-531755

LIBRA (Sep 24-Oct 23)

TROUBLE at home could be affecting your work performance. It may be a good idea to move to a more neutral ground. Signing a legal agreement will work in your favour. You'll get generous terms for your services. Be supportive of a friend's creative plans – your opinion means a lot.

CAPRICORN (Dec 22-Jan 20)

A CONTROLLING attitude will push people away. Although the prospect of letting loved ones go their own way worries you, it's essential to everybody's happiness. Resist the urge to go through somebody's belongings without their permission. Spying is a breach of trust.

Mann Countrywide on agency award shortlist

MANN Countrywide is celebrating being shortlisted as a finalist for a national estate agency competition.

The winner of each region and the national categories of the Estate Agent and Letting Agent Awards are decided by customers – buyers and sellers who have used Mann Countrywide services.

The Maidstone-based estate agent has been listed as one of the best in the South East and is in the running for the regional and national awards.

The awards will be presented by Phil Spencer, from Channel 4's Location, Location show, at the Marriott Hotel in London's Mayfair, on April 8.

Mr Spencer said: "This is the sixth year of the Estate Agent and Letting Agent Awards and I've enjoyed being part of the celebrations on each occasion."

"It's fantastic to see agents getting the credit they deserve after all the negative press they receive."

"Throughout the property industry there is a constant need to improve customer service and these awards go along way to help agents focus on keeping clients happy."

"After all, the most powerful marketing tool for agents is word of mouth, so customer satisfaction is key."

Sir Richard banking on Virgin Group licence

SIR Richard Branson is looking to obtain a licence for his Virgin Group to become a High Street bank and return to the mortgage market.

The billionaire entrepreneur said: "We are going to get back into the mortgage business and we will become a bank either by acquisition or by getting our own banking licence."

"You will see us become a consumer bank within the next couple of years."

Virgin, which was unsuccessful in acquiring crisis-torn Northern Rock, sold its Virgin mortgage product, Virgin One, to Royal Bank of Scotland more than five years ago.

Sir Richard wants to take advantage of the lack of confidence in existing banks, to give Virgin the chance to quickly gain a share of the market.

Top tips for clearing out your clutter this spring

CLEARING the clutter from your home can give it a new lease of life for the start of spring.

BY NICK AMES

Top interior designer Ceri Rocca has revealed her top tips for tackling storage issues as the days grow longer.

She said: "It's time to start thinking about that annual spring-clean, whether you're opting for a full-blown makeover, a quick lick of paint or simply just a vigorous cleaning exercise to get your house looking spick and span."

"With March 31 seen as the best day for spring-cleaning, you can make some small but significant changes to your home and lifestyle, so long as you're willing to put aside a day for some serious effort and elbow grease."

Ms Rocca said most people are hoarders and storage space is at a premium for nearly everyone. But, more often than not, people aren't maximising the potential space that goes unnoticed in the home.

She said: "As your home will be much more comfortable and run far more efficiently if things are put away, why not try some of the following ideas to help?"

These are her tips for a thorough spring clean:

- Store toys in plastic colour-coded stackable boxes with lids to differentiate the types of toys inside; or you may decide to give each child their own personal box they're responsible for to encourage them to tidy up after themselves.
- By covering open shelves with roller blinds, using a fold-up screen or ceiling-hung fabric panels as room dividers, you'll be able to hide some of that clutter and achieve more space.
- Drawer dividers are a great way of organising small items such as fashion accessories or cutlery; try Lakeland for quality space-saving products.
- Out-of-season clothes can be stored in empty suitcases or bags that are designed to fit snugly under a bed, unnoticed – your wardrobe (and partner) will thank you for it.
- To fit more into your wardrobe, plan storage that reaches all the way to the ceiling. Stow suitcases and rarely used items on harder-to-reach upper shelves. Add hooks to the door for belts, ties and jewellery.

- If you've kept your shoe boxes, you can take a photo of each pair of shoes and stack the boxes neatly in your wardrobe with the image facing outwards so you know immediately which shoes are in which box.

- Shelving is key and inexpensive – place above doorways and in alcoves. Use small wicker baskets for the little mementoes you can't bring yourself to throw away, and simply store on the shelves.
- Use rows of hooks on walls in the hallway, kitchen and bedrooms for coats, clothes, utensils and pots and pans where possible.

- Look for furniture that serves more than one purpose, such as coffee tables with built-in drawers, side tables that also function as display cases, armoires that can be used for unsightly computer equipment, and sofas that pull-out as guest beds.

DESIGN FOR LIFE: Ceri Rocca, above, says spring is the time to clear out the clutter. Below, the clean lines of one of Ms Rocca's pristine interior designs

MOTORS NEWS

Mini crop top lights up gloomy motor market

NEXT weekend marks the showroom debut of a car that could lighten current gloom – the Mini Convertible Mk II.

The market has waited two years longer for an all-new Mini crop top than for the hatchback – here first in Cooper (£15,995) and Cooper S (£18,995) forms.

If the original wore decapitation awkwardly, the newcomer is more harmonious with roof up or down. Prominent roll bars behind each rear seat have gone too, replaced by a single bar that extends only if a crash is imminent.

Urban Cruiser, the 'Son of RAV', is coming soon

TOYOTA launches its answer to 'townie crossovers' like the Nissan Qashqai and Kia Soul, next month.

The eye-catching Urban Cruiser uses expertise honed by the Japanese giant's experience with the RAV4 series, but notes the motor market's desire to downsize and for SUVs (sports utility vehicles) to be less obtrusive. So the Urban Cruiser is compact and uses a 1.4-litre diesel, but still looks muscular and, Toyota insists, will be 4x4... but let's not bet against a front-wheel drive model later.

Patriot's sparks Jeep revolution from inside

JEEP has clearly listened to repeated complaints about the Achilles heel of its otherwise clever bargain basement 4x4, the Patriot – poor quality interior design and finishing.

The car has an all-new instrument panel, redesigned centre console, remodelled door trim, carpeted boot floor and premium floor mats plus new sound systems. Yet prices are even more competitive than before, starting from under £15,000, which is family hatchback money for a proper off-roader.

MORE NEW THAN OLD: BMW's 1-Series Coupé is a spiritual successor to the original two-door E3, but boasts something the older car never had in the UK, an excellent diesel option despite using run-flat tyres to free the boot from packing a spare.

It also boasts access to something the E30 never had in the UK – some of the best diesel engine options in this class.

The 120d (£21,385) is the entry model for the whole range as well as the diesels, yet powers the car to 62mph in just 7.6 seconds.

Its 123d flagship sister, as tested here, does the job in 7.0 secs; all petrol versions better that, of course, but you are still getting a sporting BMW plus diesel economy and even our 123d should average some 50mpg.

What an engine too – twin turbochargers for loads of power across the range, plus the smoothness of a petrol unit.

And it is a proper four-seater, though rear legroom is cramped and you will tire of having to re-adjust either front seat after allowing rear passengers in and out.

It comes with BMW's impressive EfficientDynamics (ED) package, delivering here and now economies and lower emissions without compromising what we can still enjoy about driving, and includes a 'stop-start' facility that cuts and smoothly re-starts the engine when stationary in traffic or at the lights.

USED CAR ROUND-UP: OUR PICK FROM A KEY SECTOR

BIG PEOPLE CARRIERS

NOT everyone can downsize due to the recession, so big people carriers are still in demand though used prices have eased, as they have done across the car market. Renault drew the 'people carrier' blueprint by launching the purpose-built Espace, but others picked up the ball and ran with it more effectively, selling more than the self-styled 'creator of automobiles'; our choices here have certainly outlasted the French original. They can be bought as genuine seven-seat family motors that can cope with everything a big family will ask them to.

carsforkent.co.uk

CHRYSLER VOYAGER

COMMERCIAL and private buyers made the Voyager a big hit for Chrysler in the UK. All versions seat seven, but there is more demand for the extra luggage space of 13-inch longer 'Grand' models and those featuring Stow 'n' Go: under floor stowage that also takes the folded seats when not needed. The smooth and powerful post-2004 diesel auto is the powertrain to go for. Voyagers ride comfortably, but bulk, small wheels and vague steering make for a dull drive.

KIA SEDONA

NEVER mind the quality, feel the width describes the Kia Sedona (1999-2006). Replaced by a more sophisticated model, the original is a cheap, reliable and capacious used buy though the interior is tacky, safety features were not up with rivals and it feels lumpy on rural roads, though excelling as a comfy motorway muncher. The post-2002, 125bhp diesel is the engine to go for if the budget will stretch. Sliding rear doors and a big tailgate make access easy.

FORD GALAXY

IF Renault's Espace distilled the essence of the people carrier, Ford mass-produced it. The 1995-vintage Galaxy plus VW Sharan and Seat Alhambra clones sold well through space and car-like handling. The latter pair are still going strong and should be considered if you want something later yet cannot run to the excellent post-2006 second generation Galaxy. Reliability on early 'Mark I' Galaxies is flaky so post-2000 diesels are the pick of the used crop.

Leader of Post 16 Education (or 14-19 Curriculum) Upper or Main Spine plus TLR 1c (£8,611)

Our school is undergoing an exciting rebuild as part of Building Schools for the Future (BSF) and our approach to learning is creative and concerted, with buildings reflecting our vision.

Our Sixth Form numbers some 120 students. We work collaboratively with all our local secondary schools and North West Kent College, attracting both male and female students. Some courses and our new diplomas are shared across the Gravesham collaboration and with KS4. These include A level Media and Photography, English and Psychology through to the Business & Finance and Society Health & Development diplomas. We have a reputation for leading innovation for offering a wide and varied range of courses at all levels.

You would be leading a team of well qualified tutors and teachers to build on our current success but challenge us to move forward. Our Leader of Post 16 Education is ably supported by our Post 16 Co-Ordinator.

As a clear thinking, good team player who is innovative and enthusiastic about learning post 16 and its future development you will also be a highly qualified and leading practitioner.

BUSINESS BRIEFS

More effort into saving energy pays dividends

CASH-conscious businesses have by now found ways of reducing their electricity, gas and water costs by negotiating lower charges and moving to lower energy lighting.

But these savings will soon be eaten up by further increases in prices and carbon taxes says Martyn Young, pictured right, who runs Blean-based Atlantic Business Resources.

"A cost-effective solution is to educate your staff into minimising usage," he said.

"A good way to start is to appoint an 'energy champion' with responsibility for reducing usage. With weekly meter readings, usage can be charted on the wall.

"By engaging staff in this way you are ensuring continuity of effort, rather than one-off training which often gets forgotten. Employee involvement can easily reduce utility costs by ten per cent.

"For higher usage businesses there are energy monitoring and control systems which will take readings every 30 minutes and provide information.

"These cost from about £3,500 upwards, but can easily pay back within one to two years of savings. There are interest-free loans available through the Carbon Trust, and they also attract 100 per cent capital allowances."

Free start-up seminar

PEOPLE thinking of working for themselves are being offered a free training seminar on how to survive and thrive in the recession.

Called Let's Talk Starting In Business, it will be at Barclays business centre in North Street, Ashford, on Friday.

It's run by Capitalise Business Support (CBS) in conjunction with NFEA, the national enterprise network.

CBS managing director Sean Dennis said the aim was to have more workshops in Ashford and Maidstone during the year.

And would-be bosses can also discuss the possibility of finance.

Ride property boom when the tide turns

Heart of county will see rapid recovery, delegates told

■ BY TONY PATEY

PROPERTY prices in central Kent will boom again once the economy starts moving out of recession.

The message was clear from county-based industry expert John Elliott at a workshop on this year's outlook for property in the Weald and west Kent.

Mr Elliott, managing director of Millwood Designer Homes, based in Tonbridge, said although current trading remained tough, "stock was beginning to move and individuals could obtain mortgage finance, although on more stringent terms".

He told delegates at the meeting, run by local law firm Thomson Snell & Passmore, that once the turning point in the general economy comes the recovery in the property market would be "rapid".

"As developers would be unlikely to get their existing 'mothballed' sites on line quickly enough to satisfy demand, prices would rise again as fewer sites came on to the market to satisfy need."

Simon Richardson, of the South East England Development Agency (Seeda), said the outlook was mixed.

He added that surveys showed businesses in Kent were less pessimistic about the future than their counterparts in the rest of the South East.

However, he said, the numbers of residents employed in the financial services sector meant the Weald and west Kent area was likely to be more vulnerable to the effects of the credit crunch than other parts of the county.

A discussion group on regeneration and renewal concluded the area was held back by factors such as poor road transport links and higher priority for investment given to other areas such as Thanet or the Thames Gateway.

Another group discussing rural and agricultural issues said the rural community had been sustained over a number of years by diversification into other activities.

However, farmers were often prevented from diversifying due to complicated planning rules and regulations and, more recently, restricted finance.

Demand among farmers to develop their businesses was not matched by political will.

Regarding rental property, it was concluded that in the current market landlords must be prepared to offer more flexible terms to attract and retain tenants and keep up their income, including break clauses and rent-free periods.

In the meantime, developers who had options over potential sites were not exercising them because funding was not generally available for residential development unless sites were wholly pre-let.

So the conclusion was that the Weald and west Kent area is in a good position to take advantage of the upturn when it comes, and what was needed were effective council-led initiatives and a stronger infrastructure.

HOPES DASHED: Canterbury City (green) ended Sheppey's title dream

Islanders' title hopes all over bar shouting

AFC Sheppey 0 Canterbury City 1

AFC Sheppey's hopes of winning the Kent County League Division One East title were all but ended at the weekend as they were beaten by champions-elect, Canterbury City.

Recent form had shown that Sheppey would be formidable opponents, especially on their own ground. And so they were, though not so much as an attacking force but in the way they organised themselves defensively and frustrated

FOOTBALL

City for the whole of the first half.

The islanders managed to keep out City for 45 minutes, but Sheppey became more positive in the early stages of the second half.

Had their finishing matched their ability in defence, they would have had the game wrapped up. City then came back into the game with Scott Lawford hitting the crossbar, before a free-kick driven into the Sheppey goalmouth rebounded to Wayne Fittall who hit in the winner. City went on to dominate the rest of the game with flowing football that was far removed from their unimpressive first half performance.

Jamie Allen's side have dropped down to second and are level on points with Canterbury, but City still have three games in hand and a superior goal difference.

The islanders return to action on Saturday with a trip to Kennington.

Missed chances cost Court ladies

WITH promotion to Division One of the Women's Outdoor League assured, Gore Court ladies slipped to defeat at the weekend.

The Sittingbourne side travelled to Upminster with several key players unavailable. Goalkeeper Kerry Rainer missed the first half due to being stuck in traffic, and it proved costly as they lost 3-1.

Some interesting umpiring lead to Upminster equalising but Court soldiered on with the score level at half-time.

Upminster came out strongly in the second half and scored two early goals and although Court continued to make countless opportunities, they failed to take them.

Old enemy a real tester for Bourne

THE toughest of this season's three remaining Kent 1 fixtures awaits Sittingbourne on Saturday, when they travel to promotion rivals Old Gravesendians.

The Bourne enjoyed a 17-12 derby win over division leaders Medway in their last fixture, but now face an equally daunting game against a side who are above them in the table by virtue of their vastly superior points difference (257 to Sittingbourne's 112).

Gravesendians, who won 23-5 at The Grove on the opening day of the season, battered Askeans 58-0 in their last game.

Kent duo bowled over after becoming world champions

CRICKET

■ BY GLENN PEARSON

KENT and England captain Charlotte Edwards admits it's going to take time for it to finally sink in that her side are world champions.

The 29-year-old had previously lost in three World Cup semi-finals, but in the early hours of Sunday morning, Edwards lifted the trophy to cap off an amazing 12-months in which the England women's team won the Ashes in Australia and Edwards herself was named ICC Women's Player of the Year.

In a tense final in New South Wales, England bowled New Zealand out for 166 thanks to Nicky Shaw claiming figures of four for 34 having been drafted in on the day of the game to replace the injured Jenny Gunn. At one stage England were cruising, but lost five wickets for 40 runs to slip to 149 for six, including Edwards for ten and Kent team-mate Lydia Greenway who made eight.

Shaw and spinner Holly Colvin came together at the end to see them over the line to win by four wickets.

A delighted Edwards said: 'It's great having the trophy but I think it will take a couple of days to sink in.

'I'm not too sure what I am feeling at the moment but I am just so happy we got over the line in the end. We are world champions – it's just believing it now.

'We made really hard work of it, but it doesn't matter how you win as long as you win. The girls have worked really hard.

'I was biting my fingernails at the end because I didn't want us to mess it up. We had done so well in the field, we bowled and fielded well, so to let it slip stupidly would have been disastrous.'

The World Cup is just the start of a big year for Edwards and her side as they look to continue promoting the women's game in England. The Kent and England skipper will lead her side out in the inaugural ICC Women's World Twenty20, which if England make the final, is to be played before the men's Twenty20 final at Lord's later this summer.

The England side also take on Australia looking to make it three Ashes wins in a row, but for now Edwards is savouring the moment of having led a side to the top of the women's game.

She said: 'My brother said to me three months ago that we would win it and I have done it.

'If I really put my mind to something it normally happens, but it would not happen if I didn't have such a great bunch of people around me. They have done fantastically well and it's great to see their faces. It's amazing.'

Stalemate puts big dent in Brickies' promotion bid

FOOTBALL

BY YOURSWALE REPORTER

Walton Casuals 0

Sittingbourne 0

SITTINGBOURNE'S hopes of making the Ryman South play-offs look to be slipping through their fingers after they dropped five points off the pace at the weekend.

The Brickies went into the game without leading scorer Richard Brady, still out after receiving a bad eye injury in last Monday's 2-2 draw with Leatherhead, and Ian Varley also through injury.

Bradley Spice was brought in for his first start since re-signing from Ashford Town, while Nick Reeves continued at the back.

The home side had the better of the early exchanges but it was the Brickies who had a good chance to open the scoring when Spice's pace beat the defender, but the forward shot wide when well placed.

Casuals should have taken the lead when a cross from Michael Barima found Paul Armstrong on the penalty spot, but his header went wide of the Sittingbourne goal.

The end of a poor first half that saw Walton Casuals as the better side ended with a promising move between Hicham Akhazzan and Spice that ended with a long low cross into the Casuals area being missed by everyone.

If the first half was Walton Casuals' then the second was Sittingbourne's.

After 52 minutes, Akhazzan sneaked up on the blind side of Francis Duku in the Casuals' area and slipped the ball to Tom Bradbrook

Sittingbourne starting XI

Subs used: Kayembe (Spice 69), Green (Akhazzan 89)

whose shot was well saved by Bradshaw. This was immediately followed by a chance for Akhazzan himself but again Bradshaw was equal to it.

Walton were now depending upon break-aways as Sittingbourne dominated. One of these saw Barima's hard drive sail just over the Bourne bar.

After 70 minutes the Bourne faithful thought substitute Elie Kayembe had scored. He did well to get into a shooting position but was harshly adjudged to have handled the ball before firing home.

By now, Walton Casuals seemed to be satisfied with a point and put ten men behind the ball to frustrate the Bourne.

Right on time, Kayembe fired home again only to be given off-side. Sittingbourne's impressive away record continues – still only one away league defeat all season.

ON TARGET: Faversham Town wrapped up the three points with a clinical first half display

Town kept at bay by battling Bengal after a scorching start

Sporting Bengal 1 Faversham Town 3

GIVEN that Sporting Bengal have conceded an average of over five goals per game this season and have yet to pick up a point, this was a qualified success for Faversham, who beat the same opposition 10-0 at Salters Lane back in November.

The Lilywhites looked like beating the par score at the Mile End Stadium when they raced into a 3-1 lead just past the half hour mark, but despite their dominance they were kept at bay for the rest of the game.

Craig Thompson headed Town in front after 14 minutes and nearly doubled the lead a minute later, only to glance Dane Luchford's cross wide.

Sporting Bengal then shocked the visitors with a 23rd-minute equaliser, when Johik Miah brought down a cross-field pass from Benjamin Schmitt and cut inside before curling a shot past stand-in keeper Carl Hodgson.

However, the unwelcome prospect of becoming the first side this season not to beat Bengal was quickly erased as almost straight from the kick off, top-scorer Damian Abel restored Faversham's lead with a shot from the edge of the area.

Thompson then had a goal disallowed for a foul on the Sporting keeper, but the visitors' third goal arrived in comical fashion when a botched clearance was deflected in to the Bengal net off Sadique Ali.

Town were in control throughout the second half, but were unable to build on their lead. Thompson went close five minutes after the restart and Luchford saw an effort hit the woodwork, while at the other end Hodgson made a brave save at the feet of a Bengal striker.

Town were due to play Croydon in the second leg of their Kent League cup semi-final on Tuesday night, trailing 4-0 from the first leg. For a full report visit www.yoursware.co.uk.

Court struggling in bid to move up

HOCKEY

Gore Court 2 Epsom 3

GORE Court's hopes of promotion from South Hockey Division Two were severely dented at the weekend as they were edged out by strugglers Epsom.

The home side dominated the early exchanges, going ahead through a well taken short corner by Aaron Glass, but Epsom hit straight back within a minute. Court continued to create many chances for Paul Surridge, Glass and Richard Dixon, but the usually prolific trio were off their game. Then shortly before half-time some fine play by Tom Oyler unlocked the Epsom defence and Dixon finished off a fine move to give the Sittingbourne side a 2-1 lead at the break.

The second half started poorly with an uncharacteristic error by Nellies gifting the equaliser to Epsom. The visitors sniffed a chance of an upset and their energy and commitment was excellent.

Court struggled to find their first half form and calamity struck when some awful marking allowed Epsom to take the lead with 15 minutes remaining.

Court pushed forward and threw everything at Epsom, but with 11 men behind the ball and some resolute defending, Court were unable to get back into the game.

DENTED: Gore Court's title hopes suffered a blow with a narrow defeat

Lacklustre Norton put in a performance to forget

FOOTBALL

Croydon 2 Norton Sports 0

NORTON Sports put in their worst performance of the season at the weekend as Ben Taylor's side were beaten by Croydon.

The home side started strongly, laying siege to the Norton goal for the first 15 minutes with the visitors seemingly unable to break the shackles of their lacklustre start. The villagers were indebted to goalkeeper Paul West who made a string of good saves.

Their luck finally ran out on 17 minutes when a shot was well saved by West but the loose ball was cracked home by Tony Atkins.

The goal seemed to wake Norton up a little and they started to keep the ball and put a little bit of pressure on the home side, but at the back they still looked vulnerable to the counter attack.

Hopes of getting back into the game in the second half were increased within the first few minutes when a Croydon central defender was sent off for pushing Tom Nunn to the ground.

With the man advantage, Taylor changed the shape of the side, taking off a defender and sending on Darren Slatyer to run at the home side.

Norton were having trouble breaking the home side down and things went from bad to worse when livewire striker Tommy Price was sent off for a second unnecessary yellow card. Norton seemed totally unable to break down the Croydon defence and they were regularly getting caught on the break.

DISAPPOINTMENT: Ben Taylor's Norton struggled to find their feet in a poor display on Saturday

Five minutes from time any hopes they had of getting back into the game were thrown away when they were reduced to nine when Jon Emmerson was shown his marching orders. A final break in injury time saw Atkins head home from close range to secure the points.

Norton return to action on Tuesday with a trip to Tunbridge Wells, followed by a home fixture with Erith & Belvedere next Saturday.
